Digital Tools Workshop

The Rise of E-commerce in Spain: Revolutionizing Logistics and Supply Chain Management

We absorbingly watch all of Christopher Nolan's blockbusters, from Interstellar to Oppenheimer, his magical creation of experimental soundscapes, large-format film photography, and mathematically-inspired images and concepts. All this binge-watching of the master auteur without bothering to know that without the technology Nolan possibly would have struggled to create these concepts and large-format film photography on the silver screen. It is similar to the Spanish story. Not the story of Spanish conquistadors of the medieval or late medieval period. But the emerging narratives of Spanish industry captains of the new age, the era of digitalization and e-commerce. Within this, Spain's love and lust for logistics subsumes its role under the remit of supply chain management.

Spain is known for its massive manufacturing – the sector alone accounts for around 12 percent of GDP – it would not have been possible without the country's massive reliance on its efficiency of logistics and supply chain management. Hence, without this improved supply chain and logistics management Spain could not have grown so much in tourism, chemicals and petro-chemicals, food and beverages, and heavy industries.

I'm Ruvintha Fernando from Sri Lanka. C3S Business School is recommended as a student friendly college. The lecturers and the staff supports every student without hesitating. The services provided by the college is in a very higher standard. It's nice to be in C3S to have my Bachelors and it's a UK degree which I will get from Spain. Good luck to C3S to expand more.

C3S Business is really a friendly place to be, with my few years of experience. The staffs are approachable and helpful, the university feels very safe and homely as they know we left our family back home, for us to be here, they gives all the support we need to be able to make a great stand.
The first few months though it was rough, but with the encouragement and guidance I was able to secure an Internship which has really helped me and my life in Spain.
